A need of having a Journal of Advanced Research in English and Education, as a platform for the education professionals as well the research scholars in English and Education, was felt since long. It is with the support of some professionals and M/s ADR Publications, New Delhi that we could realize the dream and we are bringing out its inaugural issue. The journal shall be a quarterly issue and is intended to aid professionals and scholars to publish their works and promote healthy debates. However, attempts shall be made constantly to keep this journal purely as an academic platform.

It is observed that the Education of our country - specially the elementary education - passed through several crises. We, as a country, could not achieve satisfactory rate of literacy; and whatever level of education has been obtained, has not been satisfactorily a skill based one. As a result, our education system merely created job seekers and not entrepreneurs. Our education could not provide living for our people and failed to achieve adequate economic development for the country and upward social mobilization of our people. It is felt that in our education system, right from pedagogy, methodology and skill orientation to the rate of access of our people to education, there is a need to have a relook. There is a requirement of bringing positive and substantial changes and this journal could be one step in that direction to create and document scientific evidences. Let this journal promote a free flow of thoughts and ideas of thinkers and scholars to address those issues.

I am happy to mention that some of the scholars from overseas have shown interest to join us and two of them from Japan have already joined us in our editorial board. We are greatly indebted to them.

I take this opportunity to thank the contributors of articles, members of the editorial board, advisors and the publishing house for their unstinted support; without which the release of the journal would not have been possible.
